Wellington Motors for Kroger (USA) and Other Supermarkets

Wellington Drive Technologies Ltd. (“Wellington”) is pleased to announce two recent orders for the Wellington ECR range of electricity saving motors for commercial refrigeration equipment.

Agreement has been reached with Kroger Corporation (“Kroger”) of the United States to supply Wellington electricity saving motors for chilled produce equipment. The motors will be used in supermarkets operated under the Kroger brand and other brands owned by Kroger in the United States.

Kroger is one of the United States’ largest retailers, with 2500 stores, and is a leader in adopting energy-saving methods. This initial agreement covers the delivery of over 20,000 Wellington ECR electricity-saving motors. The motors have been adapted to meet specific Kroger requirements. The delivery period envisaged is approximately 18 months.

The addition on Kroger as a customer means that Wellington motors are now being supplied to several of the world’s largest food retailers.

An order for ECR motors has also been received from a large Australian manufacturer of refrigeration equipment. The order covers 10,000 motors for delivery over the next 12 months, for chilled produce cabinets to be used in Australian supermarkets.

For reasons of commercial confidentiality the order values cannot be disclosed. The name of the Australian manufacturer is also covered by confidentiality provisions.
